

After seeing the group represented on a news feature lately, i decided to have a look at your website.

For what its worth here is my opinion: Growing up in the rave era, drug and alcohol abuse were rife in schools i attended. Drug education was at that time terrible, i learnt nothing apart from people teaching us about the dangers and reality of drug abuse knew very little compared with a streetwise 15 year old. I found your website interesting but a lot of this information is opinion based and in some cases incorrect. Now, don't get me wrong, i'm not a user, a libertarian etc. I think what your doing is good, cannabis like all drugs is dangerous. This does need highlighting to the youth. But nobody is going to take you seriously (especially young users) if you information is questionable. This could give the pro-legalisation campaign a foot in the door.

I say all this because i have a young son and the prospect of him growing up the way i did, scares me to death! Education, and literally taking about cannabis is vital, but it must be done an even-handed way.

Anyway good luck with your campaign, but be careful, you can cause more harm by misinformation than you think.